Summary: Is there a secret to living our increasingly wired life while not letting it consume you so you can live your best life offline? More than just another etiquette book, AIN'T "U" GOT NO MANNERS is your go-to guide with secrets and common sense for surviving and thriving in a world that increasingly blends your online life. It will help you hit the #Think button, and at a minimum, entertain you with a rogues' gallery of online mistakes. It will also call attention to the upside of online.

Kristin Johnson is a prize-winning/prize finalist writer, blogger, ghostwriting/creative writing consultant, screenwriter, and editor. A graduate of the Master of Professional Writing Program from the University of Southern California, she has published/collaborated on six books and has ghostwritten several books (and scripts) for clients that acknowledge her contribution.
